DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restriction

1. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:
  - I. Claim 117-128, drawn to a simulator measuring distance, classified in class 702, subclass 149.
  - II. Claim 129-134, drawn to a simulator consisting of a material of high strength to weight inertia connecting means, classified in class 463, subclass 2.
  - III. Claim 135-137, drawn to sensing means for measuring the rotation of a shaft and communicating those measurements, classified in class 702, subclass 145.
  - IV. Claim 138-140, drawn to simulator measuring a rate of rotation and rotation characteristics of the ball, classified in class 702, subclass 145.
  - V. Claim 141-143, drawn to measuring the motion characteristics of an unconnected ball through sensors that occur when a ball is struck, classified in class 702, subclass 142.
2. The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

Inventions I-V are unrelated. Inventions are unrelated if it can be shown that they are not disclosed as capable of use together and they have different designs, modes of operation, and effects (MPEP § 802.01 and § 806.06). In the instant case, the different inventions because Inventions I-V are related to a simulator comprising of a ball, and a base that simulates distance related to a ball that is struck, but each group discloses a different aspect than in the other groups that requires a different search. For example, Invention II is unique in that it consists of a material of high strength to weight inertia connecting means, which is not stated in any other group. Invention I disclose means of a rigid construction that requires three degrees of freedom. Invention III discloses sensing means for measuring the rotation of a shaft, which is a unique limitation that is not addressed in the other claims and requires a new search. Invention IV discloses measuring a rate of rotation and rotation characteristics of the ball, which is a unique limitation that is not addressed in the other groups and requires a new search. Invention V discloses measuring the motion characteristics of an unconnected ball through sensors that occur when a ball is struck, which is a unique limitation that is not addressed in the other groups and requires a new search.

3. Restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper because all these inventions listed in this action are independent or distinct for the reasons given above and there would be a serious search and examination burden if restriction were not required because one or more of the following reasons apply:

- (a) the inventions have acquired a separate status in the art in view of their different classification;
- (b) the inventions have acquired a separate status in the art due to their recognized divergent subject matter;
- (c) the inventions require a different field of search (for example, searching different classes/subclasses or electronic resources, or employing different search queries);
- (d) the prior art applicable to one invention would not likely be applicable to another invention;

(e) the inventions are likely to raise different non-prior art issues under 35 U.S.C. 101 and/or 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include (i) an election of a invention to be examined even though the requirement may be traversed (37 CFR 1.143) and (ii) identification of the claims encompassing the elected invention.

The election of an invention may be made with or without traverse. To reserve a right to petition, the election must be made with traverse. If the reply does not distinctly and specifically point out supposed errors in the restriction requirement, the election shall be treated as an election without traverse. Traversal must be presented at the time of election in order to be considered timely. Failure to timely traverse the requirement will result in the loss of right to petition under 37 CFR 1.144. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which of these claims are readable on the elected invention.

If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which of these claims are readable upon the elected invention.

Should applicant traverse on the ground that the inventions are not patentably distinct, applicant should submit evidence or identify such evidence now of record showing the inventions to be obvious variants or clearly admit on the record that this is the case. In either instance, if the examiner finds one of the inventions unpatentable over the prior art, the evidence or admission may be used in a rejection under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) of the other invention.
